A STUDENT PUBLICATION, JACKSONVILLE STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

VOLUME IV

JACKSONVILLE, ALABAMA, Wednesday, October 24, 1951

NUMBER SIXTEEN

Ordinarily, I make a tremendous effort to keep as much first person as possible out of this column, but this time I intend to be different. There is a lot of saying I want to do.

To start off, I'm harping on an old, familiar theme — school spirit. Jacksonville just hasn't got it. At Troy the band and a handful of students worked up an enthusiasm and spirit I have never before seen demonstrated in this school. It was a wonderful thing to see happen. People who had never before been enthusiastic about football shouted themselves hoarse. Now why? What caused such a spontaneous outburst? How can a school spiritually dead as this one produce something like the spirit seen at that game? It does prove one thing—we can do it.

School spirit isn't just enthusiasm over a good football game. We've had plenty of good teams. School spirit isn't produced by having an exceptionally fine school to be proud of either. Etowah High School in the City of Attalla has some of the finest school spirit that can be found anywhere, and the school isn't particularly outstanding. (I'll probably receive threatening letters for making that last statement). We have things to be proud of here. We could try being proud of them for a change.

I'm one of the first to say that this school sure could stand improvement, but if ye had the right spirit we'd get out and try to do some of the improving ourselves instead of sitting around griping.

Herewith I would like to issue a warning. Most of what I have to say is in the nature of unpleasant truths and none of it is funny. It is written in a spirit of righteous wrath. If anyone is interested in simply being entertained—read no further.

Purely as a lack of interest and being self-centered is a lot of what is wrong, and what has happened in the Masque and Wig Guild this fall is a good example.

WELCOME HOME, GRADS

Gamecocks Primed For Battle With Governors Of Tenn.

Jacksonville's Gamecocks took a day off Monday and took light work outs Tuesday and Wednesday. The rough stuff will come this weekend since the Gamecocks have an open date. Coaches Salls and Wedgeworth hope to get in some much needed drills before the Jax 11 meets Austin Peay in the Homecoming tilt on Oct. 27. The Homecoming game will be the third game the Gamecocks have played on their home field. They have lost one and won one before the local fans.

Baring practice injuries, the Gamecocks should be up to full strength when they meet Austin Peay, except for left half, John Krochina, who was injured in practice before the first game. Latest reports indicate that Krochina will be out for the remainder of the season.

Coach Salls was well pleased with the victory over Troy, but was dissatisfied with the teams over-all performance. For the second time this season the offense was held the whole first half without making a first down. The defense made quite a few mistakes also that might have paid off for the opponents if it had occurred at the right spot.

With much concentration and hard work the rest of this week and next week, Salls and Wedgeworth hope to gather up loose ends and fashion the team into a smooth organization.

The coaches realize that considerable improvement must be made if the Gamecocks are to be ready to meet Austin Peay on Homecoming.

Bonfire—Pep Rally Friday Night To Be Broadcast

Through the facilities of Radio Station WHMA, Anniston, fifteen minutes will be set aside by the station to help publicize the pre-game festivities of Homecoming 1951.

This is the first time that WHMA has attempted to broadcast a pep rally of this magnitude. On the microphone for WHMA will be Dana Herbst interviewing the captains of both football teams and coaches plus a word to the alumni by members of the student body.

Among the various groups that plan to attend and lend support to this program will be the college and cheerleaders. The touch-off of the bonfire will be at 8:15 on the west side of the football field. Be sure to attend this gala event and even more sure to listen in Saturday morning to the re-broadcast.

by the J-C'ub. The Melody Makers will play.

In addition to these highlights there will be dormitory and club decorations, the reunion of old friends and classmates and other informal pleasures.

"Miss Homecoming"

Sarah Lou Armstrong of Leeds was elected "Miss Homecoming" last Friday, and will reign over the week-end festivities. Completing her court will be the other candidates for this honor, who were chosen to represent the various dormitories. They are: Jessie Gilchrist, Nancy Brown, Elaine McGraw, Marlene Cofield, Rolanda and Yvonne Goetze.

For the visiting alumni the festivities will start with registration in Graves Hall Saturday at 1:00 p. m. Following registration the old grads will be taken on a tour of the campus. From then on there will be a full afternoon and evening of events.

to say is in the nature of unpleasant truths and none of it is funny. It is written in a spirit of righteous wrath. If anyone is interested in simply being entertained—read no further.

Purely as a lack of interest and being self-centered is a lot of what is wrong, and what has happened in the Masque and Wig Guild this fall is a good example. Twenty-three apprentices were taken into the Guild. Of the twenty-three I can name, approximately eight worked, even a little, on "Blithe Spirit". They didn't have a time or they had something more interesting to do were the reasons given. Without the will to work you can't have school spirit or anything else worth having. I'm not fussing entirely at the students either. The faculty and administration could do wonders, but all too often they have the same defeatist attitude that is becoming prevalent around here.

Now let me make some constructive suggestions. In the first place, take a look around. We have some pretty darn fine things here. The International House is unique. There is nothing quite like it in the entire South. Our music department is one of the finest in the state. The operettas put on here annually cannot be found elsewhere in the state. There is a film society here, in case anyone is interested: Membership entitles you to see some of the best and most interesting movies made in the past half-century.

The Masque and Wig Guild offers ample opportunity for dramatic expression to anyone in school who is interested. Be proud of the good things and avail yourselves of the opportunity they offer. My second suggestion I have already made. When something is bad, get out and try to do something about it. When you start working hard at something you'll be proud of it.

There are some encouraging signs. The spirit of the Troy game was one. The way the dining hall mess has been straightened out is another. That was an all-fired horror if there ever was one. The improvement is wonderful to behold. The increasing interest shown in elections and contests of all kinds is a sign of growing interest among the students in what is going on.

This year's freshman class is going to do the place and it's spirit worlds of good. They believe in getting out and working and doing things. I say much more power to them. Maybe their example will wake up the rest of the school. Orchids also to whom ever was responsible for getting the "Mimosa" going again this year.

Gamecocks Wallops Troy

Scoring early and late in the game, Jacksonville's Gamecocks came through with a 13 to 7 victory over the Troy Red Wave Saturday night to spoil what was otherwise a successful Homecoming for Troy.

The Gamecocks came through with the first score of the game when a Troy fumble was recovered by Jacksonville on the Troy 25 yard line. Joe Dacus passed to end John Meadows in the end zone for the score. Buddy White failed to kick the extra point.

The Wavemen came roaring back in the second quarter when Troy's Ersell Beck intercepted a pass thrown by Bob Henderson on the Jacksonville 45. On the next play Allen Harrell flipped a short pass to Austin McDonald who went all the way for the Troy score. Harrell made the conversion.

In the second half it was more pride, respect and progress. All over the nation colleges and alumni look forward to the day they can renew acquaintances and feel again the atmosphere of life in college.

To be able to recall the time spent in study and play by visiting the institution is to enjoy once more the thrill of the crowd to the National Anthem and the wild roar of the fans as a man dashes into the end zone.

"Gem of the Hills"

Pretty Billy Barksdale has been chosen as the first in a series of "Gem of the Hills" which will be a regular feature of The Teacola in the future. "Gem of the Hills" is the title given to the town of Jacksonville many years ago, and will be adopted for the slogan of this feature, which will honor some popular coed each month.

Religious Emphasis Week will be observed at Jacksonville State College on Nov. 5-9 with Dr. Henry Hitt Crane as the speaker. It has been announced by President Houston Cole. All services will be in the Leone Cole Auditorium at 7 o'clock in the evening, Monday through Thursday, and on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

In addition to these services, Dr. Crane will speak on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to a group of ministers in the Presbyterian Church education building; Tue-day at noon to the Anniston Rotary Club; Wednesday at noon to the Jacksonville Exchange Club; and Thursday afternoon at 3:30 to the college faculty.

Dr. Crane, who is regarded as one of the leading ministers of the country, is no stranger to Alabama. He was the Religious Emphasis Week speaker here two years ago, and has given a series of sermons in Birmingham and Sylacauga in recent years.

He comes from a family of ministers, his father being the late Charles A. Crane, pastor of The People's Temple, Boston. His son, Frank Crane II, is also a Methodist minister. He is a nephew of the late Dr. Frank Crane, whose daily column was familiar to thousands.

Presiding at the services will be the following: Monday evening, Dr. Houston Cole; Tuesday evening, the Rev. H. Ross Arnold; Wednesday morning, the Rev. Robert McNeill; Wednesday evening, the Rev. John Oldham; Thursday evening, the Rev. John B. Johnson.

NEVER MISS HOMECOMING

Two members of the alumni who never fail to attend homecoming are Robert Austin of Birmingham and Paul Snow of Mt. Pinson. They have already sent in their reservations and will be here Saturday.

Art Exhibit Set For November

The Art Department of the Jacksonville State Teachers College announces the third exhibition in its 1951-52 Series, entitled "John Marin—Milestones and Masterpieces in Watercolor." Hung in the Lounge of Bibb Graves Hall, the exhibition will be open to the public, and will be on display from November 4 through November 25.

Loaned by the American Federation of Arts, the exhibition includes ten watercolors and two etchings by the 81-year-old dean of American painters. Spanning the years from 1906 through 1941, the works offer an opportunity for a study of the development of the artist during 45 years of continuous creative activity.

Still painting today, Marin, in his work since 1941 has retained the inventiveness, originality and creativeness of the earlier works on display. Much of his late work has been in oils a medium which he has spasmodically used throughout his career as a change from watercolors.

The present exhibition gives ample evidence for the much repeated words of the critic, Virgil Barker, who in describing Marin's work said, "Appreciation of Marin's watercolors is nothing less than an initiation into a more abundant life. With Marin everything in the world is alive."

Adolph Menjou Here Monday Night

Adolph Menjou, noted Hollywood star, will give a lecture presentation Monday night in the Leone Cole Auditorium at 8 o'clock.

He will tell of his experiences in the movies, before the sets, behind the scene, the part that luck plays in the careers of actors, and many other interesting facts about which the public knows little.

He will intersperse his lecture with humorous anecdotes, many of them at his own expense.

Tickets are available now at the President's office.

A small boy was playing ball in the next lot when his mother called, "Didn't I tell you to beat that rug?"

"Nope, you didn't. You told me to hang up the rug and beat it."

there will be a full afternoon and evening of events.

MISS BRANSCOMB PROMOTED TO MAJOR

MAJOR BRANSCOMB

Miss Lucille Branscomb, head of the department of business education at Jacksonville State College, and a flying enthusiast, has been promoted to the rank of major in the Civil Air Patrol, it has been announced by C. A. P. Headquarters in Washington, D. C. The CAP is a voluntary reserve auxiliary of the Air Force.

Miss Branscomb is commanding officer of the Jacksonville Squadron, and is the only woman in the United States who commands an all-men Civil Air Patrol Squadron. She was appointed warrant officer in December 1945 and was assigned to command the Jacksonville unit. She has been promoted progressively from that rank to her present status.

The Jacksonville squadron consists of two units—a senior and cadet flight. The senior group is made up of college students and the cadet flight consists of students of the Jacksonville High School.

During her six years as commanding officer, Miss Branscomb has directed the training of more than 500 college and high school students in ground and pre-flight instruction. She is assisted in the various phases of this training program by Air Force veterans and selected senior officers who have themselves successfully com-

Re-Educate To Freedom

Whatever opposition to the trend toward complete socialization of American life we do have is aimed mainly at legislation, or at politicians who favor such legislation. If certain laws are enacted, or repealed, or if "our kind" of politician is elected—so goes the reasoning—then all will be well.

That kind of therapy comes from looking for quick results; it attacks the effects without looking to the cause. The laws, and the politicians who favor them, are the product of the mass-mind of America, and that mass-mind is the product of the ideas implanted in it long ago and carefully cultured through the years. Unless and until this mass-mind of America is re-educated to freedom, the end product of Socialism is unavoidable. No program based on a policy of immediacy can prevent it.

The task of those who would stop our descent should not be the changing of laws but the inculcation of values which will make such laws impossible. That is a difficult chore, to be sure, but it is the only one capable of producing the desired results. It calls for a long-term project and, in the nature of things, those who undertake it cannot gather the fruits of their labors. Only our children's children will do the reaping, although some spiritual benefit accrues to those who enjoy fighting for the principle.

It is exactly this kind of zeal that brought Socialism to America. The advocates of that school of thought, 50 years ago, met with an aversion to political intervention for stronger than the current avidity for it. Nevertheless, they went at their seemingly impossible mission, kept at it, and in less than three decades we had the New Deal. They did an effective job on the American mind.

The current and belated opposition to Socialism would do well to study the educational methods which preceded its advent; and to capture, if possible, the missionary fervor that brought success. The Socialists were fired by faith in the rightness of their doctrine, a faith which in turn rested on a "scientific" dogma. They had it on the authority of Karl Marx, who got it from the stars of history, that Socialism is the fated modus vivendi of mankind. There was nothing anybody could do to prevent it, and it would come without a lifting hand. Nevertheless, his followers undertook to hurry history along. They went to work on the American mind.

II

With admirable astuteness, they went to work particularly on the fertile mind of youth. They were amply rewarded. The college student took readily to their humanitarian and romantic slogans, and his inclination to precocity was satisfied by the pretensions of Socialism to scientific exactitude. "Workers of the world unite, you have nothing to lose but your chains" has all the qualities, including lack of

OUT ON A POLL

This year our Freshman Class has tried something new at J.S.T.C., TWIRP SEASON. And, of course, we wanted to find out what everybody thought about the idea; so we asked them, "Do you like having TWIRP SEASON at J.S.T.C.?" This is what they said:

Bo Cochran "It's an occasion, that's all I can say without committing myself."

Ed Corbin "It's all right, but I haven't seen many girls coming after the boys."

Dana Herbst "It's about time the girls started to pay. It's revolutionary."

Faith Hedgpath "I've been so busy I haven't had time to think about it."

Willis Deerman "Well, I think the girls are too slow—I didn't get too many offers."

Docia Lasseter "Revolt! I'm all for disbanding door-opening."

Virginia Ihrie "I was getting along o. k. without it."

Wilbur Shaw "I guess it's o. k."

Bervele Fuller "I think it's fine for us bashful boys, because if we won't ask the girls maybe they'll ask us."

Carolyn McMahon "Sure, I'm 'FER' it, are you 'fer it'?"

Joann Pullen "My mind is blank on the subject."

'Etowah' "As future governor of yo' state, I believe in equal rights for women."

Bill Moore "I don't see any difference, but I think it's o. k."

Joe Hooper "I'd like to tell you what Dr. Montgomery said—"It's an excuse for the girls to do legally what they've been doing all year." Now don't put my name on this."

Lewis Butterworth "NO."

Lee Merriwether "I think they should have Twirp Season every other date."

Mary Wein "I don't like it, cause I'm so SHY I'm afraid to ask a boy for a date."

Jack Bailey "I don't like it, nobody has asked me for a date."

Tommy Ashworth "Don't like it—the girls make too much noise in the boy's dormitory."

Freida Malwitz "It's a lot of fun, I like to see girls doing thing for the boys, hate to make it a habit, though."

Ginger Blair "I haven't had any benefit from it."

Ann Waters "Well, it's helping a lot of girls."

Charles Hackney "I think it's a good idea to try something new on the campus, and our class would probably like to sponsor it again next year."

Lula Moseley "It's breaking me, that's the only thing I have to say."

E. R. Maddox "My glare must scare the girls off."

James Smith "No comment."

John Harvey Moore "It's all right, if they practice what they preach. Hey, don't put that in the Teacola."

Betty Owens "I go home on the weekends."

Dear Sir:

Flag waving may be an unpardonable sin among veterans, but perhaps the increasing number of former combat soldiers who are "Back in the Fight" in Korea will justify your printing this letter. It might be good reading, also, for some of our armchair tacticians.

Dear Veteran or Reservist:

(About Flag Waving)

You served your country back in the "dark days" following Pearl Harbor. You served it and you served it well—you, along with some ten million others. Just as I did, back in '46 when I was discharged, you probably said, "That's all for me!" And you meant it. So did I. Oh, brother, how I meant it.

But in '46 we didn't anticipate the kind of future that now faces us. Russia was a space on the map . . . a country, on our side, with undeveloped natural resources and a lot of gallant war-dead. Iran was only a source of crude oil. "Cold war" was an unborn term, probably conceived at Yalta . . . sired by political conflict and nursed into manhood by ideological differences. The atom bomb was a ghastly thing which had served its purpose, and would probably be outlawed. B-36's and history along. They went to work on the American mind.

II

With admirable astuteness, they went to work particularly on the fertile mind of youth. They were amply rewarded. The college student took readily to their humanitarian and romantic slogans, and his inclination to precocity was satisfied by the pretensions of Socialism to scientific exactitude. "Workers of the world unite, you have nothing to lose but your chains" has all the qualities, including lack of sense, of a college yell; the plausibility of the "surplus value" theory easily raises it to an absolute in a mind unencumbered by experience.

Just how Socialism first came to the campus is unrecorded. It made its appearance early in the century. Perhaps some of the boys picked up the germ at a street-corner meeting. They were bright boys, given to speculative ideas and endowed with the gift of articulation; also, they were boys who could make neither the fraternities nor the athletic teams. Their deflated egos were puffed up by a sense of martyrdom. They had a "cause."

After World War I the organization of these college Socialists into active, proselytizing groups took on a full head of steam. The success of the Bolsheviks gave impetus to the dogma of inevitability. Here was positive proof that Lenin was right; history can be pushed along. Henceforth, the policy of indoctrination was to be supplemented, if not superseded, by a program of action.

The immediacy of the millenium fired the imagination of venturesome youth, while their energy found an outlet in doing something about it. There was much to do. The underdog proletarian had to be aroused from his lethargy, even at the risk of a broken head on the picket line. There were speeches to be made, pamphlets to be distributed. Inter-collegiate conventions required a lot of organizational skill, and one's weltanschauung was soothed in writing, debating and voting for resolutions covering every ill of mankind. And the spirit of solidarity was regularly revitalized at necking parties.

III

Long before the New Deal came upon us, thousands of these college-bred Socialists had taken their training into fields where it could be put to use: as labor leaders, ministers, teachers, lawyers, writers. They were opinion-makers. They worked themselves into positions of importance in these fields, and further entrenched themselves by hiring more recent graduates of the Socialist clubs. Contrary-minded graduates were carefully discriminated against. As heads of departments, our bright boys had the "academic freedom" to hire their own kind; as literary critics, they boosted their brand of books into best sellers and gave a short shrift to anything that sounded anti-socialistic.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt looked for help and advice in meeting the economic collapse, these quite articulate smart boys were the logical ones to turn to. They had established their reputations for wisdom in books and articles, on the rostrum and in the classroom. Their ideas had broken through the hard crust of American individualism. On the other hand, the American businessmen were useless in the circumstances, not only because they were bewildered by the turn of events but because it was assumed that they were at the bottom of all the trouble; the Socialists had proved that.

The politicians did not invent the New Deal. They took to it naturally because it offered a grand opportunity to enhance political power, not because they understood or favored its underlying doctrine. The authors of this program were the graduates of the campus socialistic clubs. Popular acceptance of it was facilitated by the long, persistent struggle to reshape the American mind.

undeveloped natural resources and a lot of gallant war-dead. Iran was only a source of crude oil. "Cold war" was an unborn term, probably conceived at Yalta . . . sired by political conflict and nursed into manhood by ideological differences. The atom bomb was a ghastly thing which had served its purpose, and would probably be outlawed. B-36's and F-86's were only pen scratches on the drawing boards and Korea was an insignificant little blot on the 7th grade Geography maps. Peace and security was something we had fought for—something we then hoped to endure as a lasting reality. Those other things, we have, Korea, "Cold war," F-86's, Iran, the atom bomb—but peace and security we have not. Nor can we say that we will have them tomorrow—or the next day—or the next year.

I know what you're thinking—"That jerk sure is waving the flag—," You're darn right I'm waving the flag. I'm waving it for my own benefit and for yours. But it doesn't stop there—not by a long shot. I'm waving it for my unconceived children—and for yours. I'm waving it now with the hope that they will have a flag to wave—a flag with stars and stripes in preference to one with a hammer and sickle. I'm waving it, hopeful that the red in their flag will continue to represent the blood spilling in wars of the past—not the future.

You know the old Fourth of July standbys — Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Religion, Freedom to Think and to Act—you know about them and sometimes you have doubts about some of them. Sometimes—but not when you compare. When you compare those hundred and seventy-five year old phrases with the new hammer and sickle phrases, you remember that there is something in our own standby axioms. And that's when you're thankful for them. You're thankful, and you remember that this country has never known the devastating impact of block-busters—the screech of buz bombs—the whimper of hungry war orphans as they sit by the cold, dead bodies of their mothers.

Yes, you saw hungry war orphans, and a lot more. You saw the great factories and mansions of the Hitler and Mussolini regimes reduced to twisted, rusting scrap iron and rubble. In the place of flower gardens and fields there were scorched scrubs and bomb craters. Remember Corporal Smith who suddenly lost his arm . . . or Harrigan, who was a little "chicken," but who suddenly lost his eyes . . . or was he the one whose head was smattered and he never knew what hit 'im? Close your eyes and remember the stench of rotting or burning human flesh. Ghastly? Shocking? Sherman had a word for it . . .

No, I'm not trying to sell you bonds, or telling you to go out and "join" something. I just sat down and remembered. And when I remembered, I got scared all over again. Scared all the way down to the pit of my stomach . . . the same kind of feeling you get when you're crouched in a hot, steaming, stinking jungle, knowing a pair of slant eyes are drawing a bead on you.

You see, I was one of those guys who stuck his neck out and joined the Reserve . . . and 11 months ago I was called back to active duty. I fussed and fumed and called myself all sorts of names for a long time. A block-head, a stupid idiot. Yet, all along, something kept gnawing away at my conscience. Why was I in the Reserve in the first place? Why should I have to give another 12 months out of my life to the military service? Why a lot of things. Primarily, the answer lies among the few humble lines you see here. With less than a month to go on my tour of active duty, I sat down and remembered, and got scared all over again. The feeling crept up my spine and crystalized on my brain and I saw the answer. I offer it to you for whatever its worth.

In 1915 this country was faced with the Iron Rule of Bismark. In 1940 the totalitarian philosophy of Hitler and Empirical designs of Hirohito. Today we are faced with the politiburo and world-wide dictatorial aspirations of Joe Stalin, and to get down closer to the blood-stained mud, we are faced with the maniacal armies of Red China and North Korea. We are faced with the grim reality that you and I, the meek, peace and security loving individuals may again have to look into the eyes of war orphans and get that odor in our nostrils again. Only this time, in the day of the F-86 and the Russian MIG, we are faced with the fact that the rubble and twisted scrap iron may be all that is left of our own homes and factories.

Have you ever tried to picture your own little girl or boy standing by a garbage can, begging for a K-ration scrap from a mess kit?

Try that picture on for size. And remember. And then help me wave the flag a little, huh? axz?

Hysteria reigned from the moment he heard the details of those quick-trick cigarette mildness tests. First he giggled . . . then he guffawed . . . wound-up rolling in the aisle! He knew that the "single sniff" test or the "one puff" test didn't prove anything! Millions of smokers have reached the same conclusion — there's just one test that really proves cigarette flavor and mildness!

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

Famed Old Hames Hall Will Soon Be Razed

Hames Hall, a landmark in Jacksonville, has been declared a fire and safety hazard by the state fire marshal and will be razed soon, it has been announced.

Men and women in all parts of the state who went to school in this building and who have a sentimental attachment for it will regret to learn that it is being torn down. For Jacksonville it is the passing of an era.

Hames Hall, is closely tied in with the early education movement in Alabama. Since there was little progress made in the state at large with public-school education before 1854, the academy remained the essential educational factor until after the War Between the States.

By 1814 the cultured families of Jacksonville had established two academies, the Jacksonville Ma'e Academy, located on the site where Hames Hall now stands, and the Female Academy on Church Street, the site now occupied by the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Gray.

In 1871 the Male Academy was merged with the newly-established Cahoun College, while the Female Academy continued until the establishment of the Jacksonville State Normal in 1883.

Cahoun College, later Hames Hall, was erected about 1870 by local citizens. In 1883 it was transferred to the State Normal School with other property of Cahoun College. In 1908 the citizens of Jacksonville donated $10,000 for additions to the building and when the cornerstone was laid it was named Hames Hall in honor of Capt. William Hames, president of the board of trustees and one of the town's most outstanding citizens.

Hames Hall was administration building for the State Normal School until 1929 when the campus was moved to a new site where it became a four-year teachers' college. Since that time parts of it have been used for various purposes, but for the past several years it has been abandoned because of deterioration.

Many of the state's leading families have had some association

J. Harris Chappel, G. B. Gibson, J. B. Jarrett and Jacob Forney. In 1899 Dr. C. W. Daugette was elected president, and from that time the Normal began to grow; new buildings were erected at intervals, and the school became a four-year college in 1929.

This club was active for the first time during the summer session and many film enthusiasts attended the showings. The fall selections are international in scope and should attract an even broader patronage.

The schedule is as follows:

Oct. 31, "Rug Blas," France; Nov. 14, "The Wave," Mexico; Dec. 12, "Revenge," Italy; Jan. 11, "The Good Earth," United States; Feb. 13, "Tight Little Island," England; Mar. 12, "LaBoheme," Germany; Apr. 9, "Distant Journey," Czechoslovakia; May 14, "The Strong Flower," Russia.

Highlights of Pannell

(Troy L. Morrison)

The boys of Pannell really enjoyed "Twirp Week". The lounge was filled every night with beautiful girls "waiting for their dates".

We are indeed glad that "Mom" Gerstlauer is back as hostess at Pannell. Although she has not fully recovered from a recent illness, "Mom" has retained her position in our dormitory. The boys of Pannell wish for her a speedy recovery.

We are delighted to have Dr. Charles M. Gary back in Pannell. Dr. Gary is beginning his thirty-first year of teaching. Twenty-seven of those years were spent as a college professor. "Doc" has been a professor of science at Jacksonville for seventeen years. He was director of Forney Hall for fourteen years. We wish for you many, many more successful years of teaching, "Doc".

There have been vigorous complaints from the dozen or so boys who collect dry cleaning in Pannell about boys from other dormitories intruding in their business. To these intruders we quote a famous proverb: "Take due notice and govern yourselves accordingly."

J CLUB NEWS

The smoker is somewhat a reunion for the past and present wearers of the "J". It will be held in Chat 'Em Inn at 4 p. m.

The dance promises to be a big affair with the homecoming queen reigning over it. Announcement will be made later as to what band will furnish the music.

Everyone is invited to attend the dance which climaxes the homecoming festivities.

Activities Reported By Presbyterians

By Sarah Lott

The Westminster Fellowship, Presbyterian student group on the campus, meets every Thursday night at 6:30. This year the meetings are held in the new education building which is located next to the church. There is a Westminster room in the building which was especially planned for the college students, and the students also have access to a large recreation room and the modern kitchen.

The group is very fortunate to have Mrs. Carrie Mae Wright to serve as their hostess. She is always on hand with a friendly smile to make the students feel at home.

The officers this year are as follows: Dan Lott, president; Bill Jones, vice-president; Marv Wein, secretary-treasurer; Sarah Lott, reporter.

On Monday, Oct. 22, Mr. Dave Currie, one of the outstanding youth leaders of the Presbyterian Church, visited Jacksonville. The entire group enjoyed a steak dinner on Monday night in the educational building. After the dinner, Mr. Currie discussed youth conditions which he studied in Europe during the summer and which he has studied in the South.

Mr. Currie will be the principal speaker at the Fall Westminster Conference which will be held at Camp Grandview on Oct. 26-28. The theme of the conference is "Thy Will, My Will", and those who attend will have the opportunity of hearing many interesting discussions on this theme.

Several members of the Jacksonville group, accompanied by the Rev. Robert McNeill, expect to attend.

All students are cordially invited to attend the Westminster Fellowship.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE W. A. A. MET

The executive committee of the Women's Athletic Association met Oct. 10, at 4:30 in Mrs. Calvert's office. It was decided to hold regular meetings at 4:30 at least once a month on Tuesday afternoons. It was also decided to meet again to decide how often to meet.

The officers are Dot Davis, president, Carolyn Mayes, vice-president, Virginia Ihrie, secretary, Billie Barksdale, treasurer, and Peggy Galloway, reporter.

Abercrombie Hall News

Edward E. Campbell of Huntsville has been elected president of Abercrombie Hall, bringing to an end the sluggish, corrupt government that we had under the Garmon regime. Ed was elected by an overwhelming majority over his opponents, whoever they were, and His Honor has already gotten the organization running smoothly. This smooth working staff composed of Nathan Garmon, vice-president (elected by vote-buying and all descriptions of graft and who doesn't count); Benny Carlton, secretary; and "Muscles" Cochran, Reporter.

We have chosen Jessie Gilchrist as our candidate for Miss Homecoming, and her selection is a shining example of the efficiency of President Campbell's well-knit machine. She is certainly a worthy candidate and her beauty and charm are equalled only by Ed's efficient administration.

We have our share of intelligent conversations at Abercrombie, but there always has to be a wise guy to ball things up. For instance, take the joker who had the gall the other day to interrupt one of the sessions with the statement that he approved of the new chow line arrangement—you know, whereby we all have to get in line to eat, and at the foot of the line at that. Somewhere along the line he had developed a distinct aversion to the practice that some of us have of crowding in front of him in the line. Several of the larger men present set him right. We slapped his bony little face, took his bottle from him and sat on him while one of our number gave him a clue. He asked him just what type school did he think he was attending that he thought the student should act decently toward each other. "Just what type school do you think you are attending that you think the students should act decently toward one another?" was the way he arranged it, not cursing a word, "Some form of finishing school?"

Well he could just get that idea out of his otherwise empty head and be given the good understanding that we are a body of broad-shouldered and full-chested men and women and therefore are just a little above standing in line and waiting our turn to eat and that if he and the other com-

FOREIGN STUDENTS PRESENT PROGRAMS

Noemi Ballart, Mildred Fernandez, Benjamin Nodal, Rolanda and Yvonne Goetze presented a program for the McCoy Methodist Church in Anniston Sunday night. Mimi told of the work of the Youth Fellowship in Cuba, and they sang hymns in Spanish.

Hannah Meisels and Genevieve Jeannerat were guests of people in Dadeville over the week-end and took part in a program there.

On No. 9-10, the International House group will present a program for the River View School and P. T. A. They will be guests of the school for a tour of the mills of the West Point Manufacturing Co. Dot Boyd, a former student, is a member of the faculty of this school.

WESLEY FOUNDATION ELECTS OFFICERS

Wesley Foundation officers for the fall quarter are the following:

moners who are content to observe that old "first come, first served" nonsense would only get their heads out of their pockets and become walking symbols that we could all overcome that obvious indignity of standing in line and that he knew where he could put his old line-standing anyhow and that if he didn't stop that whimpering we would give him whimpering cause.

We reminded him that going to chow now is no fun at all. We also reminded him of the good ole days last summer when it was so much fun to push our way into the cafeteria since we always stood a pretty good chance of tripping up some middle-age school teacher. If she smart enough to think she could take her turn in line. We made an interesting game of the practice and were even thinking of asking the dietitian for help in promoting the sport, but it didn't work out. We had hoped to award extra grit for each trod-upon old lady, depending on whether the treading was accomplished as breakfast or supper. The mid-day meal didn't count as it was usually hot at that time of day and anybody can push over a hungry person for food.

The committee of Calhoun College trustees, consisting of Thomas A. Walker, chairman; G. B. The other Normal trustees were L. M. Grant, John D. Hammond, William N. Nisbet, James Crook, S. E. McSpadden, H. L. Stevenson, Capt. W. P. Howell and Mr. Alexander.

At that time Rad Wilkinson was mayor; Gus Stewart, George Rowan, Mr. Robbins, C. D. Martin and Ed Caldwell were councilmen.

The Jacksonville backfield moved on down to the 19 yard line where Washburn flipped a pass to John Meadows in the end zone for the final score of the game.

The Gamecocks made five goal line stands, two in the first half and three in the second to stop the strong Troy eleven, who seemed to roll almost at will in mid-field.

Both the Jacksonville and Troy teams showed good passing combinations, the Gamecocks in Washburn, Joe Dacus and John Meadows, and the Red Wave in Allen Harrell and Austin McDonald.

Having gained her earlier education at the Fifth Junior College, Tallinn, Esthonia, after the war she was able to continue her studies in German, majoring in English at the University of Erlangen and at the Teacher Training School at Lauf. She had ample opportunity to know the work of WSSF, and as its representative, assisted with its aid to Esthonian students. During this period in Germany she also worked with the International Tracing Service of IRO and as a Senior Representative of the Girl Scouts and Girl Guides.

While at Westhampton College, she was very active in the College Campus Chest Campaign and spoke for WSSF. She has talked before numerous civic and church organizations and has been active in dramatics, the YWCA, and the International Relations Club.

World Student Service Fund is happy to present Miss Koljo as a traveling secretary. She has vital interest in building a better understanding among students of the world and a deep appreciation of the work of WSSF which has helped her, along with many other D.
